

ABSTRACT

A protective layer is formed on a metallic layer prior to forming a metallic silicide layer, and the protective layer has a thickness thicker than that of the metallic layer.

5